Printing a Nozzle Check

Once the print heads are clean you can now print to check the print quality, we usually print nozzle checks on a roll.

From the Arizona print station select to print on the roll, find the print nozzle check file, press print and start to begin.

Once printed, you can check for any print issues from lines missing in the test print.

Check the previous test print if possible to see any print heads that are commonly out, you may not be able to fix them.
